Handmade Heirlooms is an adorable crafting book that encourages crafting with purposeBy GHandmade Heirlooms is an adorable crafting book that encourages crafting with purpose. Since I don't have any children, I bought this book to make gifts for my friends' children. So far, I've made the Easy-Going Mittens for a friend's eight year old daughter. The knitting directions were easy to follow and I was able to finish the pattern in just a couple of days.

"Sewing and knitting dominate this multicraft collection of small projects intended for gifting or passing along from generation to generation. Crafters looking for gift projects, especially items for babies and small children, will enjoy this sweet collection." - Library Journal (libraryjournal.com)

About the Author JENNIFER CASA has enjoyed making things by hand for as long as she can remember. Her designs are inspired by her children, books and music, her travels throughout Europe, and most especially by her love of vintage textiles and patchwork. Her work focuses on creating modern heirlooms using timeworn materials that might otherwise simply be cast aside or overlooked. A self-taught designer, Jennifer draws on her decades of teaching experience when developing beginner-friendly sewing and knitting patterns. She is an early childhood teacher and lives with her husband + daughters in northern Ohio, nestled between the city and the country. Connect with Jennifer at JCasaHandmade.com.
